Daily Pic: A Friday Morning in Chelsea

Newsweek has moved to Chelsea—so here's a report on some art in the neighborhood.

Newsweek just set up shop in Frank Gehry's great IAC building in Chelsea, so it seems only right to celebrate the galleries I'm now surrounded by.

Here are some highlights of a Friday morning's gallery ramble (I reserve the right to revisit some of these shows later, in more depth).

**Lawrence Weiner at Susan Inglett on W. 24th St.* Presented by Specific Objects gallery in Susan Inglett's space, this show assembles a huge range of ephemera from the career of Weiner, of one of our great ephemeralists. His "sculptures" are in the medium of language and ideas, so it's hard to know what to make of floods of objects that record them in material form.
