ARTIST AT PLAY:

Artist Hope Gangloff is happily married. In fact: "I am insanely happy, but I'm pretty much out of my head," says the artist as she finished up a piece for her first solo exhibition at the Susan Inglett Gallery. Gangloff, whose work can also be seen in the clothing line Built by Wendy and Sweet Action, had been on a painting time-out because she just didn't have enough room. She sounds giddy as she speaks of her new studio in Williamsburg. Many of her new pieces are large-scale, and her signature detailed drawings will be scattered about in mural form throughout the gallery. "I am pretty playful – I like to entertain myself and the people who pose for me," says the irrepressible Hope. Through February 9, Susan Inglett Gallery. – Araceli Cruz
