Top 10 for November and December

Paradise city

Now through Jan. 7: Robyn O'Neil's "Something Vanished Over Paradise" is on view at Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, 750 Marguerite Drive. Large-scale graphite drawings and collages accented with pops of color represent 20 years of O'Neil's drawing. O'Neil uses a .5 mechanical pencil to capture immense, foreboding landscapes and the figures that inhabit them. The drawings place viewers among thousands of minuscule people and vast surroundings. The works range in size from 35-by-44 inch sheets to 14 feet long. Admission is free. Visit www.secca.org.
